Land use issues are at the center of many development projects, and resolving them successfully is critical to a development's success. Maynard Nexsen attorneys have extensive experience working with local, state, and federal agencies in obtaining the required land use approvals for a wide variety of developments.

Our Land Use & Zoning Group regularly advises clients about developed and undeveloped properties, and we are frequently involved with projects early in the planning stage. Wise planning can often reduce the time and costs of lengthy approval processes.

Maynard Nexsen attorneys have experience with many different types of projects, including:

- Residential and multifamily developments
- Retail centers
- Hotel and tourism properties
- Marinas
- Office and industrial buildings
- Health care facilities

Our lawyers also have substantial experience with coastal developments, including knowledge related to wetlands-related legal issues at the local, state and federal level.
